B. A. BOWMAN, Manager.Bread making reaches the height of science inCORBY'S MOTHER'S BREAD.

We've developed the art of bread making to a science. There's not another bakery product where the certainty of results is so fully guaranteed—and it is guaranteed because Mother's Bread is a scientifically prepared bread. We determine by chemical analysis and microscopical examination the purity and value of every bit of flour, sugar, milk, shortening, yeast and salt we use. We filter and temper the water. We filter and temper the air blown into the dough. We mix dough by means of the only mixer yet devised that will develop every bit of gluten in the batch (20 per cent more gluten than in any other bread made today). We determine the temperature at which the dough should be mixed to give a perfect result. We ferment or raise the dough at a certain temperature winter or summer by means of a fermenting room supplied with heating and refrigerating pipes that cool or warm, as necessary. As we said, it's a scientifically prepared bread, and we say further it's the best bread in the world. Sold at grocers'.

Corby's Modern Bakery.

This large order was received by the Underwood Typewriter Company through their Special Representative, Mr. C. A. Joerissen, who arrived in Baltimore long before the fire was under control.

Mr. Joerissen has been very fortunate in securing large orders since he has been connected with the Underwood Typewriter Co. In March, 1900, while in competition with all of the leading machines, he secured an order for 250 Underwoods from the Navy Department, which was soon followed up by an order for 150 machines from the War Department. Since that time the orders for Underwoods from all of the Departments, as well as from the general public, have come in so thick and fast that the Washington Office has grown to be one of the busiest typewriter offices in the country.

The business of the Underwood in Washington has increased over 50 per cent during the past year, which shows that the public have awoke to the fact that a standard, reliable, writing machine, constructed on the lines of the Underwood, is the typewriter for the future.
